

Sam and Luci Release The Light Elixir Project

By Brittani Samuel

On April 1, 2020, husband and wife musical duo Sam and Luci released their first album, The Light Elixir Project – fourteen tracks comprised of original songs, including the fast-paced, banjo ripping “You’re My Heaven,” the melodic, folk song “Ordinary Day,” and the gospel-inspired “The Light Inside.”

Part-album and part-spiritual sonic experience, The Light Elixir Project was written, composed, produced and edited by the musical duo. It is available on samandluci.com, iTunes and Amazon, and streaming on Spotify, Apple Music, YouTube, and more.

More than anything, the duo wants this album to lift people’s spirits. From their experience in music therapy and performing for large audiences, they have each witnessed the power music has to change lives – and you can feel this in every lyric and every note.

“Music inspires connection, and that helps heal the world.” –Sam and Luci

The Light Elixir Project was created to uplift, affirm, and inspire. The beauty that pours out of the music is the same beauty Sam and Luci want to spark in everyone who listens to it. In “We Are One,” they sing: *I’m alive breathing/Vibration rising/
I am an infinite being/We are one*

Sam and Luci met over music. So, it is only fitting that they fell in love with making it together just as quickly as they fell in love with each other. Soulmates in every definition of the word, the two have traveled the world performing for all kinds of audiences, from rooms of 50 people to concert halls of 15,000.

Although 2020 looks to thwart their plans to travel through South America, Europe, and South East Asia, they are excited about spending time in the studio.

The duo draws musical inspiration from a variety of sources including meditation, nature, performing live and even current events like the COVID-19 crisis, which inspired their lighthearted, music video, “I Wanna Quarantine with You.”

“The best concerts are the ones you leave feeling energized, inspired, and empowered to take that next step towards your big dream. That’s the kind of experience we like to create.” –Sam and Luci

To find out more go to www.samandluci.com